

WHAT IS ABUSE IN LATER LIFE?

Abuse in later life comprises financial, physical, sexual, and emotional abuse, abandonment and neglect.¹ Perpetrators are people with whom the victim has an expectation of trust, particularly spouses, intimate partners, adult children, grandchildren, other family members, and non-related caregivers.² Perpetrators typically, but not exclusively, abuse older adults in their places of residence.³

DID YOU KNOW?

- Every year, approximately 4 million older Americans are victims of physical, psychological and/or other forms of abuse and neglect.⁴
- Older adults who require assistance with daily life activities are at increased risk of being emotionally abused or financially exploited.⁵
- Approximately 50% of older adults with dementia are mistreated or abused.⁶
- An estimated 13.5% of older adults have suffered emotional abuse since the age of 60.⁷
- Victims of elder financial abuse lost an estimated $2.9 billion in 2011.⁸
- 76.1% of physical abuse toward older adults is perpetrated by a family member.⁹
- A majority of elder sexual abuse cases involve female victims and male perpetrators.¹⁰
- Only 1 out of every 24 cases of elder abuse is reported.¹¹
- Only 15.5% of elder sexual abuse is reported to police.¹²

WHY IT MATTERS

Abuse in later life has a devastating impact on victims and can result in the loss of independence, security, life savings, health, dignity, and can be deadly.¹³ Research indicates that older adult victims of abuse have shorter lifespans than their peers who do not experience violence.¹⁴ Abuse in later life can cause both physical and psychological harm. Psychological harms associated with abuse in later life include depression, stress, helplessness, alienation, guilt, shame, fear, and anxiety.¹⁵
